

The story of a true hero.... By Taylor

As Ai, a young girl, born with asthma, was strolling along the coast of LA, there was an excruciating pain which hurt all the limbs in her body. All her movements felt weak. She was having an asthma attack. "HELP ME! WHERE'S MY INHALER?" she cried out.

As the pain got worse in her throat, her heart pounded and she felt like she was going to faint. A young boy, about her height, walked up to her and tapped her on the shoulder. "Need this?" said the strange boy. "You must have dropped it earlier. I was looking for the owner. My name is Xavier."

Xavier handed back her inhaler "Thanks, you saved my life. How about we go get some ice cream. I have to make up for this."

Just then, there was a sinister laugh from behind her. She knew who it was. It was her sister Ruby - a smirk grew wide across her face. Aqua was there too but he wasn't just mean, he was malicious and practically breathing smoke. Ai was scared and, as she dropped her inhaler, she got laughed at by everyone.

Once again, she had a flashback. An outcast like before, she had been neglected and abused by her own family and realised she wasn't meant for this world. Her friends backstabbed her and called her names. She was an isolated soul withering in the blind spots of others; she was unfortunate and darkness overtook her but Just then, she felt a little ember flare up into a flame of rage and regret. She suddenly overcame her fears and she made a speech to stand up, not just for herself but to her companions and others who are bullied too. She shouted "I am still able although I cant breath all the time and I may need extra help but I will live up to your expectations!" Everyone clapped and cheered "GO AI! " "AI IS THE BEST! " everyone shouted. Ruby was red in embarrassment and ran while Xavier hugged her. With a tear of joy, she hugged him back.
